AFTER THE EXECUTION.

ARRANGING FOR THE FUNERALS OF THE DEAD ANARCHISTS.

Thousands View the Remains of the Victims of the Scaffold—The Terrible Revenge Predicted by George Francis Train—Did Lingg Really Suicide?

CHICAGO, Nov. 14.—An examination of the dead Anarchists after they had been cut down revealed the fact that none had broken necks. The fall was but four feet, and all were choked to death. The jury certified to the death of the doomed, and the law was satisfied. All the bodies were turned over to their friends.

After the bodies of Lingg and Engel had been examined they were placed in plain coffins and taken to the store of Mrs. Engel, who, with Ida Musler (Lingg's sweetheart), sat weeping in the room. Hundreds of friends filed into the shop to take a last look at the faces of the dead Anarchists.

At 504 Milwaukee avenue, in an undertaker's shop, were the remains of Spies, Parsons and Fischer. Mrs. Parsons and Nina's mother sat hand in hand with their backs to the windows through which hundreds of curious people peered. Mrs. Spies sat alone in the corner, rocking to and fro in the agony of grief, strangely contrasting with Mrs. Parsons, whose eyes seemed riveted on the corpse of her husband.

Arrangements for the funeral of the dead Anarchists were completed at a meeting of the defense committee. There will be a procession, which will start from the home of Mrs. Fischer, No. 2 Dean street, and proceed then to Mrs. Parsons, No. 785 Milwaukee avenue. Then the procession will march to Aurora Turner hall, on Huron street, near Milwaukee avenue, where the remains of Spies will be guarded by the Aurora Turn Verein, of which Spies was a member. The next stop will be at Engel's residence, 288 Milwaukee avenue, where lies the remains of Engel and Lingg.

The German Typographical union will take charge of the remains of Fischer, and the German Carpenter's union of the remains of Lingg and Engel. Parsons was a member of Local Assembly 1367, and Knights of Labor in general have been invited to the funeral.

Four thousand or five thousand people gazed on the bodies of Parsons and Fischer at Mueller & Hardehoff's undertaking establishment this morning. Spies' remains had been taken home during the night, but the bodies of the other two remained where they were. At 6 o'clock the doors were thrown open and the crowd began to file in. The bodies rested on stretchers and were dressed only in the underclothing. At first the visitors were few, but the number steadily grew and before 7 o'clock there was a steady stream of men, women and children pouring past the stretchers. The crowd outside grew in numbers also, but it was quiet and orderly, occasionally one of the curious would mutter something as he gazed upon the upturned distorted faces of the dead, but most of the people passed on silently after a single glance at the countenances of these much-talked-of men.

At 9:30 o'clock the doors were closed. At that time there was a big crowd outside, but little or no excitement. At 9:50 o'clock Fischer's body was removed to the Dean street residence. Parsons' corpse was taken to the Anarchist printer's late home on Milwaukee avenue at 10 o'clock. No excitement attended the transfer of either of the bodies.

Messrs. Stanley, Oppenheimer and Linnecker have selected a lot in Waldheim cemetery in which to bury the bodies of the five Anarchists, the intention being to erect a monument to their memory. Spies' body will lie in state in Aurora Turner hall, he being a prominent member of that Turn Verein, and his obsequies will be conducted by the society. The procession will be formed with the defense committee at the head, followed by the Aurora Turn Verein, the Knights of Labor organizations, German Typographical union, No. 9, the carpenters' union, the painters' union, singing societies in carriages, the hearse and the families' relatives and friends in carriages.

Brass bands with muffled drums will play funeral marches, while the cortège move on to the Wells street depot, where a special train will take the funeral party to Waldheim cemetery. Speeches will be made in English and German by well known orators. It is determined to make this the greatest funeral ever held in Chicago if the authorities do not prevent it.

Plaster casts have been taken of the faces of the dead Anarchists, except that of Lingg.

In answer to a question as to whether he feared any trouble at the funeral of the dead Anarchists, Sheriff Matson says: "I do not expect any trouble whatever. The good sense of the people will prevail. Standing in the presence of these dead bodies all people must solemnly realize that the law will prevail. The funeral may be a tribute to the memory of the dead, but it will be a reverential one on the part of their friends and cannot, under any circumstances, be marked by any disorder."

Speaking of the last words of the Anarchists and the abrupt termination of Parsons' speech, the sheriff said: "It has been customary to let men say a last word on the gallows. There is no law on the subject, and it rests entirely with the indulgence of the sheriff. Some time ago the men asked me to give them each twenty minutes for speeches, but this is more than I could grant. Just before the march to the gallows began they intimated that they did not care to say anything. I did not deem it expedient for them to make long speeches, and it is never customary to permit any delay after the caps have been adjusted. I delayed the execution until 12 o'clock in order to get the last and final decision from the governor. I wanted to give them every chance for their lives."

How the World Was Informed.

CHICAGO, Nov. 14.—When Anarchist Parsons arose from his cot Friday morning he heard a sound which instantly riveted his attention. Hastily putting on his clothing he came to the door of his cell and peered through the bars into the cage on the other side of the corridor, where the members of the bar hold consultations with their clients. There in the center of the cage, with the door locked and barred on either side, as much prisoners as any of the condemned men, sat the representatives of the United Press. The finger of the operator was upon the key of the telegraph instrument, and it was probably the steady "click," "click," which had been echoing through the corridors for hours which broke the slumbers of more than one of the condemned men.

Parsons stood there and looked with a half mystified, half inquiring look upon his face. And well he might. Knowing much of the newspaper business himself he probably knew that it was the first time in the historical history of the world that the electric current had been introduced right into the very corridor of death itself for the purpose of chronicling the final movements of men who were about to expiate a crime with their lives. From long before daylight until cold and limp the bodies had been removed from the building, the instrument kept up its ceaseless click, and the pile of copy in front of the operator grew and grew. The cage was so located that every movement of the four men could be discerned. There was scarcely six feet of space between the table and the door of Parsons' cell on the left, while to the right around the bend of the corridor, not ten feet away, the operator could see the last of the condemned men as they stepped from the gallery to the gallows.

The white linen shrouds of the four rubbed against the wires on the outside of the cage as the procession left the corridor, and ere the head of it had commenced to ascend the steps the fact that the final moment was at hand was flashing over the United Press wires in all directions. Then with his finger on the key the operator sat motionless. His eyes were riveted on the little sentry box a few feet away where the unknown executioner was awaiting the signal. He heard the short crack upon the chisel that severed the rope. He pressed his finger upon the key, and even before the bodies had fallen the full length of their ropes it was known in tens and hundreds of cities throughout the country, that the dread sentence of the law had been fulfilled. Never before had realism in the distribution of news been more graphically illustrated, and never before had the echo of the hammer and chisel of the executioner been literally flashed over the wires to the outer world.

Schwab and Fielden Taken to Joliet.

CHICAGO, Nov. 14.—Mrs. Schwab, her mother, Mrs. Schaubelt, and her two children were admitted to the jail, the latter behind the screen, this morning, where the husband and father took a long farewell of his family. Jailer Folz had first given leave for them to assemble in the jail office, but changed his mind at the last moment, and husband and wife said their adieus through the wire screen.

Mrs. Fielden and her little ones came later and had an affecting interview with her sturdy, but then tearful, husband, with the same restrictions.

The two convicts left this forenoon for Joliet, where they will be met by a portion of the mercy delegation that laid over at Springfield to the last.

Did Lingg Really Suicide.

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—George Francis Train arrived from the west last night. He says the Anarchists will blow up every city between New York and San Francisco until they feel that the murder of their four comrades is avenged. He says Lingg did not commit suicide, but that a dynamite cartridge was placed in a candle in his cell by the authorities, who feared that the man would be pardoned unless it appeared that some violence was done by them.

Newspaper Comments.

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—The Volks-Zeitung to-day, in commenting on the executions in Chicago says: "Those who were condemned for destruction met their fate bravely, looking into the eyes of death without flinching. To them it was something holy to perish for their convictions. Our enemies for the time triumphed. To-day the venal press of the capitalists blows noisy bugle blasts over the 'order' which prevailed and exults over the brutal fashion in which the relatives of the victims and their disciples were greeted on the occasion of the judicial murder."

The Freiheit in discussing the subject, says: "As pioneers of a pure rational organization of society they saw the evil condition into which our social civilization had fallen and they criticised it in their newspapers and from platform and rostrum sharply and severely. In their propaganda they expressed strong sympathy with the workingmen and did their best to direct the people to a higher standard and convince them that it was an absolute necessity to bring about a better and purer state of things. For this cause were these people in murderous fashion put to death. They were warriors against social and political corruption."

Work for the Fool-Killer.

GALESBURG, Ill., Nov. 14.—Some Knox college students suspended five effigies from a wire stretched between two high trees, above the ground, just in front of the college, Thursday night, and, apparently to prevent interruption, smeared the posts of the college gate with tar, and passed a board between them. Four of the effigies were of men, the fifth a woman. In addition to bearing the names of four members of the senior class, and one of the seminary, the effigies were also named Parsons, Spies, Engel, Lingg, and the female effigy Nina Van Zandt. The affair has caused a sensation, and is roundly condemned. The mass of students are organizing a vigilance committee to ferret out the perpetrators, and expositions will probably result.

"No Funny Business."

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Nov. 14.—The police reserves in this city were to-day ordered to be held in reserve at the station houses from now until Monday evening. The authorities do not propose to tolerate any such thing as Anarchy in their midst. It will therefore be useless for the Anarchists of New York city to cross over the bridge or the Williamsport ferries with the expectation of finding a safe retreat for their fulmination of their lawless districts on this side of the river. "We are not going to allow any party of Anarchists to parade in Brooklyn," said Police Superintendent Campbell. "We will have no funny business whatever. That must be understood once and for all, as we are in earnest."

Only to Fool a Reporter.

BINGHAMPTON, N. Y., Nov. 14.—The story telegraphed from this city last night that a group of Anarchists were active here and had sent threatening letters to Governor Ogleby is entirely without foundation. It was the outcome of a barroom joke wherein a number of gay young men pinned red badges to their lapels and imposed upon an unsophisticated reporter.

Newspaper in Mourning.

WATERBURY, Conn., Nov. 14.—The Naugatuck Agitator, a weekly paper, run in the interest of the Labor party, and managed by Henry C. Baldwin, came out yesterday with reversed column rules, in sympathy with the dead Anarchists. Last night the stockholders held a meeting and voted to put the concern in the hands of a receiver.

Tailors Accused of Anarchy.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 14.—Anton Fix and John Maerten, cranky tailors of Walnut Hills, were arrested last night by Constable Ismael up in complaint of Philip Burkhardt, a hysterical young man of Elm street, Walnut Hills, who fears personal violence from the tailors, and who says they are Anarchists.

A Denial.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Nov. 14.—The report published this morning that a Chicago Anarchist armed with a bomb had visited Mrs. Miller's and Ashton's saloons in Williamsburg yesterday is now denied by the chief of police and by both the saloon keepers.

Death of Professor Civil.

OWENSBURG, Ky., Nov. 14.—Rev. Henry J. Civil, aged thirty-four, died at St. Francis academy last evening of enlargement of the heart. He was born and reared in this city, and in 1879 was admitted to holy orders of the Catholic church. He was chosen professor in St. Joseph's college, at Bardstown, a position which he held until June. His remains will lie in state at St. Stephen's church until 11 to-morrow.

Sports Ends in Death.

NEWARK, N. J., Nov. 14.—While engaged in playful sport with a fellow employee of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad company, Richard DeGarmo, a fireman, was struck by Engine 609, at Shelby junction, on the Lake Erie division, and almost instantly killed. DeGarmo resided in this city, and the body was brought here last night and taken to his home in East Newark.

Didn't Hit the Rat.

JACKSON, O., Nov. 14.—A sad accident occurred Friday morning, near Cove station, by which Christopher McClure lost his life. He was in his corn-crib trying to shoot some rats with a rifle, and as he was getting out at the door, the gun was accidentally discharged, the ball entering his forehead. He expired almost instantly.

Wrecked Whisky.

HALIFAX, N. S., Nov. 14.—A dispatch from Ingonish, N. S., says the schooner, Anna Maria, Capt. Biomin, from St. Pierre for Quebec, laden with whisky, has been wrecked at Black Brook. The cargo was seized by the collector of customs and held for orders from Ottawa. There was no insurance on the vessel or cargo.

REVENUE CONFERENCE.

HIS REASON AFFECTED.

Young Choate a Wreck from Brutal Hazing at Williams College.

PITTSFIELD, Nov. 14.—Developments in the Choate hazing case at Williams college indicate that the guilty Sophomores will be made to suffer. The college trustees have interviewed the faculty, and it is understood that the faculty are censured by them for not being more vigorous in pushing the investigation of the affair. It has leaked out that there was some plain talk by the trustees who feel that the college has been disgraced and wish to have the matter sifted to the bottom. Francis L. Sietson, vice president of the alumni, came on from New York yesterday, had a consultation with the faculty and met the Sophomore class.

The Sophomores have been asked to have the men who did the hazing appear before the faculty and give a full account of the affair. Mr. Choate recently told a friend in Pittsfield that he should not rest until he had made a full investigation of the case. Young Choate is in a bad condition. His mind is unbalanced, and he may become hopelessly insane. The Sophomores are thoroughly frightened, and it is evident they are making every effort to conceal the real facts. Recently developments in the case strongly indicate that the worst has not yet been told, and that young Choate was more shamefully treated than has yet been made public. It was reported last week that he would go back to college, but his mental condition makes it probable that he will never again be a well man, and that he will not complete his college course.

Stick to Kentucky.

The people of Kentucky are inclined to be interested less in the development of the State and the prosperity sure to follow in its wake because, as they believe, it can not occur in "their day." Why not? This is a rapid age in which we live, and when we observe the magical growth in other regions not nearly so favored by nature as Kentucky, all doubts as to our ability to equal and eclipse any "boom" on record ought to be dispelled.

Look at Kansas City. In 1860 it was a little town of 4,418 people, and in twenty years, apparently without any extraordinary causes, it has grown into a great city with more than 130,000.

Take Minneapolis and St. Paul, the "Twin Cities" of Minnesota. Situated within ten miles of each other, they have grown, during the past ten years, placed of comparatively little importance into great business centers of national repute. Wichita, the "witching city of the Wild West," existed six years ago only on paper. Los Angeles, to-day the speculator's dream, was yesterday a place in name only. The list might be extended indefinitely of cities which have sprung up, as if by magic, and seemingly no good excuse for so doing. Why should not the same and more occur in Kentucky? The conditions are infinitely more favorable. Here all nature is crying aloud for development, and reasons ordinary and extraordinary exist in any quantity why Kentucky should be the first State in the Union. The question is not "why should Kentucky grow, and grow more rapidly than any other State has?" but "Why should it not?"

Already the development has begun. To-day there are more miles of railroad under contract and in course of construction than in any other State in the Union. Soon every nook and corner of our territory will be penetrated by this iron advance agent of progress and then—then Kentucky will take the rank in the column of States which she is naturally entitled to. Young man, and old man, too, for Kentucky's era of prosperity will come in your day, stick to Kentucky. She has been a little slow about it but she will make ample atonement to all that will stand by her.—Shelby Sentinel.

EX-SENATOR PLATT, who conducted the Republican campaign in New York, says that he was surprised by the result, as he had hoped for better things. He says New York will be the pivotal State next year, and has intimated that he could base no hopes on the State going Republican.

THE Democrats of Adams County, O., are as happy a set of fellows almost as can be found just now, although Foraker was elected Governor. The cause of their rejoicing may be found in the statement that they routed the enemy in Adams and elected their entire county ticket by a substantial majority. May they do as well next year.

THE patronage at the disposal of the President of the United States is simply immense. It is the distribution of the spoils that causes a President to be so much cussed and discussed. Nor are the fat offices all of a political nature. For instance in what may be termed the household department there are some very comfortable positions that are much sought. In addition to his regular salary the President is allowed the following named corps of assistants: A Private Secretary at a salary of $3,250; an Assistant Private Secretary at $2,250; a Stenographer at $1,800; five Messengers at $1,200 each; a Steward; two Door-keepers at $1,200 each; two Ushers at $1,400 and $1,200 respectively; a Night Usher at $1,200; a Watchman at $900; telegraph operators and minor clerks. Then he has for incidental expenses, $8,000; for White House repairs, carpets, etc., $12,500; fuel, $2,500; a greenhouse, $4,000; gas, matches, livery, $15,000. It would seem one ought to live pretty well with the above allowances thrown in. Financially the office ought not to be a poor thing. Yet it is remarkable how many come out of that office poor.

THE Mail and Express says: "It should not be forgotten that it is only ten years ago since the efficiency and mercifulness of stern justice was triumphantly tested in Pennsylvania, where for twelve years previous the most desperate and best organized gang of murderers ever known in our history, the Molly Maguires, had terrorized a large region, and the execution of eleven duly and justly convicted members of that fraternity of assassins was opposed by all sorts of methods, by the petitions of sentimentalists, by the protests of those who oppose capital punishment and by threats of bloody vengeance. The night before the execution of the eleven Molly Maguires, Doyle, one of the condemned murderers, declared that 'for every drop of blood spilled within Manch Chunk jail a gallon would flow outside,' and also that 'the Molly Maguire organization is not dead,' and that 'those who perish tomorrow will be looked on as martyrs. The Governor stood firmly, and the eleven Molly Maguires were hung, and the reign of terror which this gang of Anarchists had kept up came to an end, and since those just and merciful executions took place law and order have prevailed in the coal regions, where before there was a state of affairs truly anarchic, and therefore infernal.'

Manufacture of Brussels Lace.
Brussels lace is celebrated all over the world, and we must not fail to visit one of the places where this beautiful and costly lace is made. Here we see a number of women, very quiet, very neatly dressed, and in some cases with wonderfully delicate and soft looking hands, although they are all plain workingwomen. Each is busy fashioning the delicate pattern of a piece of lace, and it is said that each woman has a pattern of her own, which she always makes, and which, perhaps, descended to her from her mother and grandmother. Some of the women are working on cushions, with pins and bobbins, and some are using needles and the finest and most delicate of thread. We are told that this thread is all made by hand, and it is so delicate that it has to be spun in damp cellars, because in the dry upper air it would break before it is finished. There are old women in Brussels who have spent nearly all their lives spinning in cellars.—Frank R. Stockton in St. Nicholas.

Blemish on Our Hospitality.

It seems to me we have quite a serious blemish upon our hospitality to our public men in subjecting them under all circumstances to the ordeal of the hand shake," said a well known public man. "Every respect is due to the right hand of fellowship, but when it comes to taking the hands of some fifty to sixty of your fellow beings per minute for hours at a time the act assumes a monotony that is excruciatingly painful to the subject intended to be complimented, however satisfactory to the complimenting people. Possibly there is some compensation in the thought of the good will that such an act engenders. It is to be hoped there is. And, in the painful hours succeeding this well intentioned martyrdom, may all the consolation that can be derived from such a source belong to the recipient of the honor."

TWO WEEKS' MISSION

Closed Last Night—St. Patrick's Church the Scene of the Most Beautiful Exercises Ever Held in this City.

TRIPPLE BLESSING, NOTES, ETC.

After two long weeks, the mission at St. Patrick's Church by the Redemptorist fathers came to a close last night, and for the Catholic heart it was the grandest time in the history of the church in this city. The good and pious fathers were warm in their praises of the priests and members of St. Patrick's Church, and thanked the latter kindly for the interest manifested in all the exercises. The fathers were indeed happy and had every reason to be so. Many persons received the sacrament during the mission who have not received it for years before. Others who have not been regular attendants were present at the different exercises, and will hereafter attend to their Christian duties regularly.

All the exercises yesterday were well attended, but the closing services last night eclipsed all, and were as follows: About six hundred men and fifty or sixty boys assembled in the school yard, and at 7 o'clock a procession was formed and all with lighted tapers marched down Limestone street to Third, counter marching on Limestone, headed by Father Mullane and a half dozen acolytes, proceeded up the aisle to seats that were shown them by ushers. Following the procession were Rev. Fathers Bond, Glorieux and Kolb chanting the praises of God. Then twelve or fourteen gentlemen bearing the beautiful mission crucifix that was so kindly donated by the ladies of the church, and which was to be erected near the altar of St. Joseph in memory of the mission. After being placed in position and blessed by Father Bond, the priests stepped forward and devoutly kissed the feet of the image of the crucified Savior, then the blessing of the candles; and Holy Rosary was recited, followed by the Veni Creator by the choir.

The farewell sermon was preached by Father Mullane, and it will long be remembered by the congregation and many others that had come to witness the beautiful and impressive ceremonies. He spoke words of encouragement to his hearers and gave to them advice that it would be well for all to heed. Father Mullane not being entirely satisfied requested the men to stand up, light their candles and to swear allegiance to Jesus crucified. They did it to a man, and then received the triple blessing. First was the blessing of the Redemptorist fathers, followed by the Papal blessing. The blessing of God was given during the Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament. A hymn by the choir and the two weeks' labor of the good fathers came to a close.

On this occasion the altar of the Blessed Virgin was most beautifully decorated with flowers, both natural and artificial, and a number of lighted tapers. We feel that all had not been said should we fail to say a word in behalf of the venerable pastor who has watched so carefully over his flock for twenty-three years and when we say that it is the desire of his congregation that he should be spared for at least twenty-three years more of useful service, we only voice the sentiments of his parishioners.

Father Bond will leave to-morrow for Janesville, Wis., whether he goes to hold a mission.

Father Mullane will be here for several days, when he will return to his home in Detroit, Mich., for a short time and then proceed to Canada on a mission.

The young ladies taking part in the Cantata, Queen of Fame, had a rehearsal at the residence of Mrs. Dr. Moores on Court street Saturday eve. They leave on the steamer Hattie Brown to-morrow for Augusta, where the Cantata will be given in the evening. Mrs. Bessie Miller Oton has charge which insures success.

We hear it remarked that none of the papers read in Maysville gave fuller or better reports of the Anarchists than appeared in our issue of Friday and Saturday last. The news, both local and general, can always be found in the columns of the BULLETIN. It is a good time of year to subscribe if you don't take it already.

The BULLETIN'S Washington correspondent says the gentlemen of that place who have invented a car-coupler are very much encouraged at the prospects. It was recently submitted to quite a number of railroad experts who all pronounce it to be the very best thing in that line ever shown them. A patent has been applied for, and in a short time it is intended to introduce the great invention to railroad people all through the country.

The Dover News reports the following sales of real estate at that place during the past week.

W. E. Tabb and wife, to Mrs. Cora M. Fraze, four lots in W. E. Tabb's subdivision. Consideration, $300 cash.

Same, to Mrs. Sarah L. Anderson, two lots same place. Consideration, $150 cash.

Same, to G. W. Bennett, one lot on Lucretia street. Consideration, $100 cash. G. W. Bennett, to Mrs. Catherine Tabb, same lot. Consideration $100.

HANDSOME INVITATIONS are out announcing the double wedding of Miss Anna Pearce Clarke to Mr. Charles C. Hopper, and Miss Ida M. Thompson to Mr. John L. Shuff, (of Jacksonville, Fla.) at 10 a. m., Thursday, Nov. 24th, at the Presbyterian Church in Maysville. Rev. C. P. Williamson, of Richmond, will officiate. The contracting parties are highly connected and well known, and the happy event promises to be a notable one in the best society circles of the county.

MR. AND MRS. GEORGE THOMPSON HUNTER, of East Third street, will entertain a select number of friends at games at their home every Saturday evening during the winter season. The initial game was had last Saturday, and a most pleasant evening it was. The following guests were present: Mr. and Mrs. Chas. B. Poyntz, Mr. and Mrs. James W. Fitzgerald, Miss Etta Everett, Miss Lizzie Moores, Miss Sophia Albert, Dr. C. C. Owens, Dr. P. G. Snoot, Senator E. L. Worthington, Mr. A. F. Respass, Mr. Hal Curran, Mr. W. L. Sutherland.

THE Georgetown Times remarks, and it is equally applicable to Maysville: "It is not uncommon sight to see new wagons passing through the streets bearing the name of a manufacturer in Ohio or Indiana. None of the towns in which these wagons are made possess any natural advantage over Georgetown. Every wagon, plow, reaper, mower and every wheelbarrow used in Scott County ought to be manufactured in Georgetown. The money sent abroad for these things never returns. As long as a people buy more than they sell they will have lean pocket books. When our people turn their attention to manufacturing establishments and make and sell such articles as they now buy in other places, they will take the first step in the direction of material prosperity."

FOUR negroes of Nelson County have been sentenced to the penitentiary for one year under the "Kuklux Act," for having brutally beaten and otherwise abused two women of their own race, of whose conduct they did not approve. Application was made to Governor Buckner for a pardon on the ground that "these offenders, concerting with numerous others variously armed, constituted themselves into a mob for the purpose of abating an evil which it was the duty and power of the civil officers to suppress." The Governor declines to "recognize a mob as one of the instrumentalities through which the laws can be properly executed," and suggests that if the civil authorities have failed in their duties they should be punished for their neglect. The pardons were not granted.

TEMPERANCE LECTURE.

There will be a temperance lecture at St. Patrick's Church to-night under the auspices of Father Mathew's Total Abstinence Society of this city. The lecture will be delivered by the Rev. Father Bond, one of the Redemptorist fathers, who for the past two weeks has been engaged here in mission work. All are cordially invited to be present and hear the parting words of the eloquent young divine.

A False Report.

The Maysville City Council has ordered the working of women upon the streets, who are put into the station house on any charge whatever. The Maysville City Council should be thrown, neck and crop, into the Ohio river.

Hold your horses, please. Some one has been telling stories. The City Council has not made any such order. This is the second time the report has been corrected by the BULLETIN, and we hope it will be the last.

Personal.

Elijah Lloyd, of Joplin, Mo., arrived this morning on a visit to relatives in this city and vicinity.

M. F. Marsh, of this paper, went to Cincinnati Saturday to see the great Booth and Barrett. He will return to day.

Mrs. J. J. Perrine and Mrs. T. J. Pickett returned this morning from a visit of several weeks at Joplin and other points in Missouri.

RESTRAINING THE PRESS.

HOW IT IS DONE BY THE QUEEN'S GOVERNMENT.

Wholesale Prosecution of Newspapers that Publish Reports of Suppressed League Meetings—Going to Jail to Gain Sympathy—Other Foreign News.

LONDON, Nov. 14.—The decision of the ministry to take advantage of the court's ruling in the matter of the crown's appeal from the dismissal of the proceedings against Lord Mayor Sullivan, to institute wholesale prosecutions against all newspapers that have, or may hereafter publish, reports of suppressed league meetings, has excited defiance in some quarters and consternation in others.

In the circle comprising the editors of leading National journals the spirit of defiance is rampant and the aspirants to martyrdom are numerous. These men have everything to gain and nothing to lose. Many of them are great in the eyes of their clientele, but having no more extended greatness are willing, not to say anxious to pay the price of a thirty, sixty or ninety days' term in jail for the privilege of being pointed at as men whom the government feared and therefore imprisoned that their influence might be proven and their power destroyed.

If the penalty of publishing matter prohibited by the crimes act brought to them nothing but the hardship of imprisonment for a month or two, if the reputation for heroism and patriotism were removed; if the peasantry were likely to execrate rather than to applaud them as they walked through the streets after their release, not one in fifty of them would deny the government's proclamation for a single minute. This is not, of course, true of Mr. Sullivan, O'Brien and several other leading Irish journalists and patriots, but it is applicable to nine-tenths of the provincial Irish editors who have lived for years upon the contributions of men with scarce enough to eat from day to day. This is the class of representatives of the Irish press that is daring the government to do its worst.

The other section, the men who are really filled with fear, are the comparatively obscure and poverty stricken men, who have striven to publish their papers with regularity, to treat of current matter fairly, and to uphold the National cause while depreciating violence and disorder. What little money these men have been able to accumulate from time to time has been spent in moving from place to place, as the larger papers have crowded them out, or to escape the penalty of an unfortunate article, a libel suit or a thrashing, and imprisonment to them would mean ruin. These men are not leaders but are among the led, and therefore receive little consideration when they get into trouble.

The Irish tenant will absorb all the sympathy that may be offered to him, but he has very little to give in return and the little he gives is almost invariably bestowed upon some one in a position to bring him to additional indulgence of compassion, or something more substantial. The poor devil who is his equal, or not very far above him, may shift for himself. If the government would vigorously pursue the course it has indicated with regard to the Irish press, the number of papers published in Ireland will speedily become reduced to those having large subscription lists in America, and supported directly or indirectly by funds contributed by the Irish in America for various ostensible purposes, the journals depending upon home patronage going to the wall and their publishers to prison.

The Crown Prince's Condition.

BERLIN, Nov. 14.—Dr. Schrosler declares his belief in the existence of a cancer in the crown prince's throat, and proposes a dangerous but complete extirpation by means of trephination. If this is done he thinks that the prince may live for three or four years. Dr. Mackenzie opposes such an operation, as he fears that the patient would succumb to it. He hopes by his method to prolong life for a year and a half. Dr. Krause proposes trephination, but he was well as all the physicians, are in favor of postponing the operation until the conditions are more favorable.

The National Zeitung says to-day: "The German specialists on Friday agreed that the diagnosis which they made last April was correct. Since then the cancer has spread." When the crown prince was informed of the nature of his malady, he retired for an hour. At the end of that time he had decided not to undergo any operation. He bears his terrible misfortune in the bravest possible spirit.

An Actress in Trouble.

BERLIN, Nov. 14.—Mme de Belleville, an actress, who gained some notoriety at Chicago and in other American cities and who is a German by birth, has received a notice of expulsion from the police here. The reason of this step is not known, but it is supposed to be of a political nature. De Belleville is by her marriage a French citizen. She had returned to Berlin from America to take her place at one of the theatres here.

Cabinet Council Considering.

LONDON, Nov. 14.—A cabinet council hastily summoned was held to consider the condition of affairs in Ireland. The cabinet decided to take immediate advantage of the court's decision in the appeal of Lord Mayor Sullivan, and undertake a wholesale prosecution of papers that publish reports of suppressed branches of the league.

Appalling Loss of Life.

SHANGHAI, Nov. 14.—Floods in Han-Nan are increasing. Hundreds of thousands of inhabitants of the province are destitute. In one place five thousand repairing embankments were overwhelmed by the flood and four thousand drowned. Another terrible inundation occurred at Sze-Chuen.
